

Since wireless communications are provided in many planes now this law would only be disruptive to people who must fly but don't really like fly, people who use cell phones are usually loud and think that everyone else is rude . The reality is, we don't need anything else to arm people with, adding to their already bad behavior